

THE ZEGRI MAID.

"And for all this heart's wealth wasted,
This wo, in secret borne,
This flower of young life blasted,
Should I win back aught but scorn?
By aught but daily dying
Would my lone truth be repaid?"
Where the olive leaves were sighing, second time he contrived to escape from Botany Bay; and less than a twelvemonth after his last conviction, he was detected in attempting to pick the pockets of the very lawyer who had defended him on his last trial, and that too in the same court where he had received his sentence. Knowing that his case was a desperate one, and that if taken, he must inevitably suffer, he escaped from the officers of justice, and ultimately fled to this country. Here he had the hardihood to open a Tuscan hat store in Broadway, and was considered to be doing business on a large scale. He and accomplices surrounded the boy who took the packet containing $12,000 down to the office of the captain of the Providence steamboat, and contrived to run with it. Merritt, the officer, after watching Vane some days, ventured, (at the risk of incurring prosecution,) to arrest him. He was tried in December, and found guilty. The Recorder, at that time, in his charge to the jury, stated that being advanced in years must have formed some kind of character, (our readers will doubtless be of the same opinion), and his failure to establish a good one, ought to militate against him. To this part of the charge, his counsel took exception, and his case was argued before the Superior court, which decided against him. He has been in prison six months, and was sentenced on Saturday to be imprisoned at Sing Sing for four years and six months, making in all a period of five years, the penalty allotted him for the offence of which he has been guilty.—I have now, we think, filled up the measure of his guilt, and in all probability will quit this squalid scene from the wall of a prison, without one friend to regret his loss or drop a tear on his grave. He is about 5 feet inches in height, stoutly built, with long dark hair, coarse bold forbidden features, presenting altogether the appearance of the most galloway-looking countenances we ever saw.—N. STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSSES OF CONGRESS—No. 176.
Thus sang the Zegri maid.

Washington, June 24, 1834.—The long agony is over. Mr. Stevenson's nomination, as minister to England, was rejected to-day by one majority; Mr. Taney's, as Secretary of the Treasury, by nine.

There will be important changes in the cabinet, some transfers, and, of course, two new members. I forbear to call names, chiefly because every body else is so ready to call them. I will simply name one gentleman, talked of as likely to be of the cabinet, because his name is used in vain—Col. BENTON. I have it from the best authority that he has been offered heretofore situations among the highest at the President's disposal; but has declined them upon principle applicable to all within his gift. Col. Benton is destined to win higher honors. He cannot be spared from the distinguished and important post he now occupies in the Senate, could he be tempted to quit it. If the Gold Bills pass the Senate, as they unquestionably will, he will most emphatically "win golden opinions from all sorts of people"—not even excepting the Whigs. His own fertile genius originated the measure, and to him will belong all the honor of its success. The gold and silver currency once restored, the Pandemonium of the Bank will swing from its moorings; and, without compass or rudder, be tossed awhile by the tempest of popular excretion, to be hurled at last into the vortex of oblivion; while the political Jonahs aspiring to the Presidency, who have navigated this "Jersey Prison Ship," will be cast overboard by popular fury, without the prospect of being swallowed or landed by any of the modern Leviathans.

But little was done in the Senate before they went into Executive business; Mr. Tomlinson presented one Whig memorial from Windham county, remarkable as the place where the bullfrogs insulted Capt. Udan (pronounced Hudang); and Mr. Morris presented a counterblast from Ohio.

Mr. Hill moved to call up the consideration of the Legislative Resolutions of New Hampshire, laid upon the table yesterday, on motion of Mr. Webster, to see, mean time, whether there were any precedents in the case. There happened to be found a plenty; but notwithstanding this, the Whigs all opposed Mr. Hill: Clay, Ewing, Clayton, Webster, &c. Mr. H. had prepared a déjeuner à la fourchette, a breakfast with a fork, for Mr. Bell; but the Whigs were determined that Mr. Hill should not serve up the repast. Clayton's argument against it was, that Mr. Bell had left the city and gone to New Hampshire, having agreed to pair off with Mr. McKean; but in the midst of this unanswerable argument, down pops Mr. Bell from the White Hills of New Hampshire, into the very midst of the Senate, green goggles and all!—Clayton did not urge the argument of "absence" any further, and looked as if he wished Mr. Bell to old Nick! Col. Benton and Mr. Shepley made a few observations in support of Mr. Hill; but he was out-nayed. I hope Mr. Hill will give his "suppressed speech;" he has a precedent from Mr. Adams, both on the point of senatorial "resignation" and the publication of his speech.

In the House Mr. Polk's Deposit bill was taken up; and, after being discussed all day, passed by a triumphant majority, 22! Mr. Coulter made a short, but splendid speech against the pretensions set up by the Bank, though he was opposed to the present bill. He said the Government could make no contract with the Bank, because the public were interested; and if it could contract with the Bank, then the contract might be the subject of a judicial trial; and thus the whole treasure of the country be left at the mercy of a judicial tribunal: nor could the Government make any contract with the state Banks, any more than they could with the Rothschilds. He had changed his views about the Bank in consequence of its refusing to submit to examination. He read an opinion of C. J. Marshall, showing that the Institution its officers and its books, were all liable to examination; and this without any clause in their charter about it. He cited the Bank of England, and examination, had into its proceedings. He said the public monies of the treasury, without any new law, would be where they were before the existence of the Bank, in the custody of the officers of the government; and they were responsible for the safe-keeping; but if the monies were deposited by law in the state Banks, this responsibility would be taken away.

REIS EFFENDI.

We do not suppose that a citizen of the U. States could be found, unless amongst those who are entirely misled by the prejudices of party, who would undertake to maintain that the creation of vacancies for the purpose of filling them during the recess of the Senate, is not in direct defiance of the spirit of the constitution.—This doctrine completely nullifies the Senate, as a branch of the appointing power; it gives the Executive an enlarged and dangerous and uncontrolled authority, which it was one of the express objects of the constitution to confine within restricted limits. The present Executive began to exercise this power on the 6th of March, 1829; and ever since that period, he has used it with increasing freedom and boldness, until he seems to regard the presentation of his nominations to the Senate as a mere ceremony, to be performed or not, as the caprice of the moment may dictate. This transgression of one branch on the rights of others, is the great peril which besets our system of government; and if proceedings of this sort are quietly acquiesced in, the days of this government are numbered.—Daily Advertiser.

It is with such miserable trash that the federal papers deceive their followers and themselves—it has kept them down for thirty years, and will always keep them down, until they can make the majority of this nation as perverted and misinformed as themselves.—No man doubts, or ever did doubt, that the Senate has a confirmatory power in appointments to office, where the constitution gives it to them; and General Jackson has never either disputed or attempted to defeat the exercise of this power. The President has a right, by the constitution, to fill vacancies happening during the recess, and to grant commissions to the officers thus appointed, to hold until the end of the next session of Congress. Mr. Wirt, Attorney General under J. Q. Adams, gave it as his official opinion, that the vacancies which may "happen," meant vacancies which existed from any cause; and this has been the opinion entertained under every administration, and by all parties. The power of the President to remove any officer, holding his commission at the will of the President of the United States, has been conceded at all times, and has been exercised by every President. General Jackson has not created vacancies merely for the purpose of filling them during the recess, and with a view to evade the constitutional confirmatory power of the Senate. Such, however, is the insinuation in the Daily Advertiser, the most moral and respectable of the opposition prints; and yet, moral and respectable as it is, it does not hesitate, in the hope of gaining a little advantage, to insinuate this untruth, to deceive its followers, and to impose upon the public. General Jackson, in the case of removal, has exercised no power, not acknowledged to be vested in the Executive, by the first expounders and framers of the constitution, and exercised by every administration. He may have used his power of removal more freely than former Presidents, but not more freely than the people approve, nor as fully as they desired. The object of the opposition party, for which the Daily Advertiser, is, obvious, to hold fast upon the Senate, the most aristocratic branch of the Government, now the representative of the great monied power of the country. It also has in view the object of approximating, as fast as possible, to the principles of the nullifiers, with whom the old federal party of the north are in alliance, and whose candidate the "Whig" party of this State must be brought to support. It will be labor lost. The indications are strong and conclusive, to our minds, that the democracy will go on conquering and to conquer.

Post Office.—Another of the Bank Senator's falsehoods nailed to the counter. We call Mr. Senator Ewing the Bank Senator, for surely he is no representative of Ohio, the State he comes from. We ask the reader to look at the following letter from Mr. Stockton. The "enormous" allowance made by Major Barry, it seems, is considerably less than the amount paid by Judge McLean for the same service. It is by these gross and official falsehoods that the Bank party hope to succeed—they love deception and error, if not from a natural instinct, from a constant habit, which to them is second nature. They will only deceive their own party:—

WASHINGTON CITY, 23d June 1834.

To the Editors of the Intelligencer.
Gentlemen.—The majority of the Post Office Committee of the Senate have, in their report, inadvertently upon my contract for carrying the mail on No. 1105, and ten other routes. They say the contract was made at 14,950 dollars—that improvements were made upon it amounting to 21,150 dollars. They seek to convey the impression, that no additional service of importance over and above what was covered by the sum of 14,950 dollars, was to be performed; and they declare that this "extra amount" of 21,150 dollars, "was paid without legal warrant or adequate consideration."

The routes in question, were the important ones running from Philadelphia to Baltimore; from Baltimore to Washington; from Baltimore to Lancaster; from York to Harrisburgh; from York to Gettysburgh; from Gettysburgh to Hagerstown; from Keistown to Carlisle; from Westminster to Chambersburgh; from Hagerstown to Greencastle; from Uniontown to Greencastle; and from Frederick to Uniontown. They were let in the fall of 1831. My bid for them contained two propositions—the 1st to run the mails in the manner specified in it for the compensation of $14,950; the 2d, to carry the mails under very extensive improvements, embracing numerous alterations, increased number of trips, and increased speed, at a compensation of 35,100, being $20,150 more than was asked under the first proposition.* The department accepted my proposal, at the lowest sum, as was the practice in such cases, as well under former administrations of the Department as the present, reserving the privilege of adopting the last proposition, if it should be, subsequently, deemed expedient. Afterwards the highest amount of service was ordered to be performed from the commencement, and it was so entered in, and noted upon the contracts, and schedules to correspond, regularly made out, recorded in the Department, and sent to me.

This service embraced not only what was performed under the preceding contracts which were made by Judge McLean in 1827; but several further improvements, to say nothing of the increased weight of the mails. And the compensation for it, which the majority of the committee condemn as being "without adequate consideration" and "enormous," is $100 less than what the Department paid under the preceding contracts; and much less, in proportion to service rendered, than what I received on those lines from either of the predecessors of Major Barry. These facts are apparent upon an examination of the papers in the case. And if that examination had been fully made, I am persuaded that I should not have been put to the unpleasant task of now appearing before the public to repel unmerited imputations.

The strictures of the majority of the committee on the western routes in which I am, with others, interested, shall be answered to-morrow.

RICH'D C. STOCKTON.

*The mode of proposing bids was open to all, for it was authorized and requested by the published proposals under which the bids were made.

It may not be amiss to call the attention of the worthy gentlemen who have undertaken to ferret out immoral and indecent practices, to certain disgusting caricatures of the President of the United States, wherein he is represented as being almost naked, in a boxing attitude, and to similar other prints which are presented in some of the most public windows in this city for general inspection.

It is reported that one of the "picture committee" entered the third row of the Tremont Theatre, on Thursday night last, for the purpose of seeing who was there, disguised by a false pair of whiskers, &c. &c.; but unfortunately he was soon found out, stripped of his extra hair, and assisted down stairs rather unceremoniously. This is the report, but we do not know how true it is.

The Mercantile Journal has taken occasion to libel us in a most wanton and blackguard manner, very frequently. The assertion in that paper of Thursday, that our Police Report of Mr. Pendleton's case contained "glaring misrepresentations and sneers at decency and morality," is a base falsehood.

The jury in the case of the State vs John Hunt, for the murder of Edward Dunn, on board a fishing schooner at Hingham, some months since, have returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter; and Hunt has been sentenced to ten days solitary, and 7 years hard labor in the State Prison.

Wonderful Coincidence.—The Commercial Gazette, of yesterday, and the N. Y. Com. Advertiser of Thursday, have each a paragraph upon strawberries;—and in each of them the following sentence may be found, verbatim:—

"A medical writer says they have been found useful to persons who were disposed to consumption. They are also an excellent dentrifice—cleansing the teeth and gums in the most pleasant manner, and without the least trouble. There is no kind of fruit more delectable to the sense of taste than the strawberry—and there are few more agreeable to the sight, when fresh from the stem—fully ripe—large—pulpy."

Mr. Avery, who has turned ostler, was badly injured by a kick from one of his new congregation the other day.

We can enlighten little two penny. When we wrote the article he refers to, we had not read his paper for a week.

POLICE COURT.

Harriet Smith—a very young and pretty woman, with eagle beak, and "an eye to threaten or command," pleaded not guilty to the charge of keeping a disorderly and ill-governed house in Lynn street court. It was clearly proved that six or eight women, of dissolute character, resided within her garrison of sin, and that sailors and others were in the habit of making the house a rendezvous at all hours of the night. To rebut the inference, that she obtained her livelihood by this unlawful traffic, it was proved that she was occasionally employed to keep a meeting-house clean, for which service she was paid at the rate of sixpence an hour! She closed her defence, by saying to the complainant—"Aint you afraid that you will be struck dead, on the stand, you awful liar."—Ordered to give bonds for her appearance at the Municipal Court, and committed for the want thereof.

Jane Stacey—sister of the preceding frail one, and an inmate of her house, was disposed of by a sentence of 3 months in the House of Correction.

Harriet Williams, in the habit of making hackney-coach calls, in company with sailors, after midnight, at Mrs. Smith's establishment, was settled for 4 months.

Mary Ann Wilkins—a bright brown beauty—would drink and coquette with the sailors, and challenged the officers to arrest her if they dared, when surrounded by her hardy admirers. The constables did dare, and she was put out of harm's way for 4 months.

Robert Miller, a hearty-looking young man, but somewhat liquor-logged, and Mary Forrester, a withered witch, of 50, were charged with wantonly misbehaving themselves. They lived together in a cellar, like man and wife; the only proof, however, that they had ever been lawfully joined together for better and worse, was the fact, that Miller was in the habit of giving her a black eye once in a while. This, though a very strong evidence of genuine modern felicity and familiarity, was not conclusive, and was also weakened by his own statement, that "they had been published three times seven years ago." He forgot to mention, that they had also been published in the Police Reports several times since. Robert, 4 months—Mary 5 ditto, in the House of Correction.

James M'Gafferty, a thick-lipped boy, about 15 years of age, pleaded guilty to the charge of being a common drunkard, and was sentenced to the House of Correction for four months. He was unprepared for the sentence, and, bellowing out like a bull-calf, vehemently promised that he would "never drink another drop of liquor." It appeared that his parents did not reside in the city.

John Bryant—a venerable one-eyed vagabond, about 5 feet nothing, with a pate as bald and glossy as a lard-bladder—was picked up in the street, in a helpless state of intoxication, and sent to the House of Industry for 6 months.

Annual Commercial Statement.—We have received an early copy of this important document, which was submitted to Congress on the 22d April. It comprises 326 pages, large 8vo.

We learn from it, that the value of imports into the United States during the year, ending 30th September, 1833, was $108,118,311—being more, by about five millions, than in any former year since the period immediately subsequent to the last war.

The exports during the same year, ending 30th September, 1833, amounted to $90,140,433, of which $70,317,698 in value, was of domestic origin. The value of domestic exports was never so great before in any one year, except in 1818, when it was $73,854,437. The value of all exports, foreign and domestic, was never before so great, except in 1818, when it was $93,281,133—1801, when it was $94,115,925—1825, when it was $99,335,388—1806, when it was $101,536,963—and 1807, when it was $108,343,546.

The amount of American tonnage which entered the ports of the United States from foreign countries during the same year, was 1,111,441 tons—departed $1,142,160. Foreign tonnage entered, 496,705 tons—departed, 497,039.

The tonnage of shipping built in the United States during the year 1832, was

Registered,	72,982
Enrolled,	71,556
Total,	144,539

The whole registered tonnage of the United States, as ascertained at the Register's Office, on the 31st December, was

Enrolled and Licensed,	686,989
Fishing Vessels,	649,627
Total,	1,336,616

Of the registered tonnage, 72,868 tons were employed in the whale fishery.—Jour. Com.

Another Rescue.—Yesterday afternoon, as our contemporary, the editor of the Evening Gazette, was crossing the Common, he noticed a movement in the water of the Pond, near its centre, and soon discovered a lad, about seven years old, (whose name we have not learned) floundering and struggling for life. He plunged in, without a moment's delay, and succeeded in rescuing the boy just in time to save his life. The lad, it seems, had been walking about on the edge stone of the pond, and accidentally fell in.—Trans.

Lafayette.—At a meeting, yesterday, of the Executive Council of the Commonwealth, resolutions were unanimously adopted, expressive of the sentiments of that body, and of the citizens at large, on the death of Lafayette—and the Governor was requested to forward a copy of the same to the representative of the family of the deceased.—Ibid.

French Claims.—Extract of a letter from Washington, dated June 20:—"A decision, which the Board of Commissioners has determined upon, will destroy the hopes of many claimants—that is, the whole class of Brigand Cases (St Domingo Claims) will be rejected. This decision strikes off about three and a half million of dollars.—Ibid.

Horrible Crime.—We learn that a monster in human shape, named William Sexton, and residing in Noble, above Fifth street, has been committed to prison for the perpetration of an outrage too fiendish and loathsome to be mentioned in our columns. The victim of his infernal passions was his own step-daughter, a child about 11 years of age, who is now in a most critical state. The brute was, we learn, absolutely tracked through the house in blood. He is a middle-aged married man, and has heretofore been considered respectable.—Phil. Intell.

The vestry of St Paul's Church, having made a complaint to the proper authorities of the city, respecting the vendors of oranges, who daily have possession of the side walk opposite that edifice, were yesterday accompanied to the spot by a number of police officers.—Their object was to enforce the law preventing the obstruction of the public highway, but the attempt proved unavailing, and the vendors still maintain their ground.—*N. ## CONGRESS.

The Senate, on Tuesday, spent most of the day in Executive business.

In the House, Mr. J. Q. Adams, from the Joint Committee, on the subject of General Lafayette, reported several joint resolutions, expressive of the deep sensibility of Congress and of the American people at the occurrence. The Committee propose that the President of the U. States write a letter of condolence to the family of the deceased; that the two Halls of Congress should be hung in mourning; that the members should wear crape on the left arm, for thirty days; that the citizens of the United States should wear the same badge of mourning; and that the Hon. J. Q. Adams be requested to deliver an address to both Houses of Congress, at the next Session, on the life and character of Lafayette.

INDUSTRIAL BLACK WRITING INK.

It is known that Chlorine acid diluted with water will destroy with a feather a quill over writing made with common ink will destroy it, and the same place can be again written on, and the date, sum, or condition of any writing or agreement be altered. This valuable ink has been tested chemically, and is found to be indestructible by the action of any known acids. Any chemical agent, which removes this ink must also remove the paper upon which it is written. This property, rendering it inaccessible to the arts of forgery and counterfeiting, is an extremely valuable one, and one which renders it useful to the public in general, and to every citizen of the Mercantile and Professional community. It is now offered for the public use; and the proprietor only asks a fair trial of its merits.

This ink is now used in the Office of the Government of the State of Maine by the prominent Lawyers and Public Officers, and by most of the Merchants of Portland, who are desirous to have their accounts unalterable. This ink has also been highly approved of by all the Professors of Bowdoin College, and the certificate of Professor Cleveland, a distinguished chemist, is hereto annexed.

Bruswick, June 6, 1854.

"It is hereby certified, that Mons. Le Bron has requested me to examine some of his manufacturing, with reference to its power of resisting the action of chemical agents. I find it superior to any record ink with which I am acquainted."

(Signed) PARKER CLEVELAND, Chemist.
